

How do I join the Representative Assembly?

There are two ways you can become a Representative Assembly (RA) delegate:

1. Be nominated and then elected for one of the following positions:

- a. District Delegates
 - b. First Nations Delegates
 - c. Rural Delegates
 - d. Speaker and Deputy Speaker (nominated by membership; elected by the RA)
- To access the nomination papers enabling you to run for election, please click here.
 - To nominate a colleague or to be nominated to run for election for one of the above positions, you must be a member in good standing (i.e. have your 2017 membership dues paid) by the time the call for nominations is sent. This is expected to take place in early May.
 - To nominate a colleague or to be nominated to run for a First Nations or Rural delegate position, you must provide services to the First Nations Health Authority and/or provide rural care within the scope of the Rural Subsidiary Agreement \(RSA\).

2. Be appointed by your Section or representative organization. These organizations are:

- a. Society of General Practitioners (SGP)
 - b. Specialists of BC (SBC)
 - c. Canadian Medical Association (CMA)
 - d. Resident Doctors of BC
 - e. Medical Undergraduate Society
- To be appointed for these positions, you must be a member of the section or representative organization. Please connect with them directly for more information.
